STATISTICS OF STATE UNIVERSITIES AND STATE COLLEGES

For the Year Ended June 30, 1916

This annual bulletin, formerly prepared and published by the National Association of State Universities, has been published by the Bureau of Education for the past eight years. The data given are taken from reports received from the offices of the presidents of the various institutions, and the figures printed are substantially as given in those reports.

CHANGES IN COURSES AND METHODS OF INSTRUCTION

Alabama Polytechnic Institute.—A two-year course in mining has been established.

University of Arkansas.—In September, 1917, 12 units for conditional admission will be required.

Colorado School of Mines.—Chemistry has been changed from a required unit for entrance and made an elective.

Delaware College.—The two-year course in agriculture has been discontinued.

University of Florida.—The department of history, economics, sociology, and political science has been divided into the department of history and economics and the department of sociology and political science. A course in journalism has been added.

Florida State College for Women.—In September, 1916, the department of business will open.

University of Idaho.—Beginning with the session of 1916-17, no Latin will be required for admission.

Purdue University (Indiana).—In September, 1915, courses in public speaking were established.

State University of Iowa.—A university high school will be established (during summer of 1916) to serve as a demonstration high school for the department of education, not as a college preparatory school.

University of Michigan.—Establishment of the combined curricula between engineering college, medical school, and law school with various arts colleges in this and other States.

Michigan Agricultural College.—A new course in chemical engineering has been added.

Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical College.—Beginning with the session of 1916-17, 10 units will be required for admission.

University of Mississippi.—The department of oratory has been discontinued.

University of Nebraska.—Music is now accredited in school of fine arts in the course leading to bachelor of fine arts in music.

University of New Mexico.—A graduate school and a school of commerce has been organized; courses in Latin-American history and relations have been added.

New York State College for Teachers.—A department of philology has been organized.

New York State College of Forestry (at Syracuse University).—A course in paper and pulp making is now offered; also correspondence course in lumber and its uses.

University of North Dakota.—A department of pathology has been created. A short course in embalming has been added. The two-year course in home economics leading to a special certificate in home economics has been discontinued; elective work will be offered in home economics in the four-year course.

Ohio University.—A salesmanship and advertising department has been added.

Ohio State University.—In September, 1916, a college of commerce and journalism will open, based upon two years of academic training for admission; the three-year curriculum of the college of dentistry will be extended to a four-year curriculum.

University of Oregon.—Compulsory military drill will go into effect September, 1916.

University of Porto Rico.—A course for special training of rural teachers has been established.

University of South Carolina.—In September, 1916, entrance requirements will be 14 units.

University of Texas.—The degrees of bachelor of science in home economics, bachelor of business administration, and master of journalism are now offered.

Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas.—The following new lines of work have been added: Department of forestry, school of veterinary medicine, and four-year courses in science, general engineering, and military engineering.

College of Industrial Arts (Texas).—Three new courses of study have been added—rural arts and science, manual arts, and music—all four-year courses leading to a bachelor's degree.

University of Wisconsin.—The four-year course in music has been revised, and the degree of bachelor of music substituted for that of graduate of music. A new course without foreign language requirements, leading to the degree of bachelor of philosophy, has been established.
